The San Francisco State University chess club is open to people who are interested in playing chess, particularly chess research (books, magazines, and websites). There are no requirements for membership, and you don't need to have played any particular amount of chess or completed any specific achievements to join. To play chess, you just need to come to any of our weekly meetings, usually on Tuesday evenings from 5:00-8:30pm. Membership fees are $30 per year or $25 for only two years. An estimated 50,000-70,000 Americans are living with triple-negative breast cancer. This very aggressive form of breast cancer lacks hormone receptors and HER2/neu amplification, and is more likely to recur or metastasize. Triple-negative breast cancers are associated with shorter survival times and poorer prognoses than hormone receptor-positive and HER2/neu-positive breast cancers, and patients often relapse within a year of surgery. Patients with triple-negative breast cancers usually receive chemotherapy, but these have low response rates and many have side effects. New therapeutic options are urgently needed. Our lab discovered that a metabolic inhibitor, trimetazidine (TMZ), exhibited promising results in vitro and in vivo in triple-negative breast cancers in vitro and in vivo. While TMZ may be an effective agent for some breast cancers, our overall aim is to utilize TMZ in combination with a photosensitizing agent in order to enhance TMZ's activity and provide a targeted therapy. The purpose of this study is to develop and evaluate a novel

TMZ regimen for use in the treatment of triple-negative breast cancer in a large pre-clinical animal model that is most like human triple-negative breast cancer. A limitation of preclinical models is that the xenograft tumors do not contain stromal microenvironment, which is often present in the tumor microenvironment of human breast cancer and plays a role in tumor progression. Therefore, we will inject tumor cells in the matrigel of nude mice to mimic the human tumors. If the preliminary data suggest that TMZ in combination with light is effective in a triple-negative xenograft mouse model, we will test the optimized treatment

Screenshots: Mozilla Thunderbird 3.0.1 now comes with Marked for immediate reading feature. If you're a heavy Thunderbird user, this new beta version of this email client is definitely for you. Mozilla Thunderbird 3.0.1 is an update that adds new features to the mail application. Now users can mark an email as read and has read – neither starred nor flagged, just from the received date. The new feature is available as a beta for a short period of time and will be upgraded to a stable version in time. From the Official Mozilla Thunderbird Blog site: (Marked for reading) – Comes a new feature in the brand new Thunderbird 3.0.1 Beta that will enable you to mark mail as read, and send it on to the next stage (read or read-later) all in a single context. The idea is simple: if you mark mail as read while composing it, you can be sure your time and attention are not being wasted by reading unimportant things. At a glance, Thunderbird 3.0.1 has new look & feel, but the most notable new feature is the one above. It's not a new mail client that users can download for free via Mozilla Update page yet. For those that want to try it out now, they can download a Live Beta here. Mozilla Thunderbird 3.0.1

Highlights: 1. New General Interface 2. Compose mail with autocomplete 3. Shows preview of received mail in Message summary window 4. New User Interface brings modern look & feel 5. Multiple Languages support 6. Code-Golf – Maintain code readability while being short & compact 7. Improved providers and database shops to use a combination of Oracle and Salesforce.com for a complete suite of messaging, CRM, and sales-force automation. They both offer good features and functions, but can you use them together? In this session, we are going to share the pros and cons of these two companies. Then we will explore where the differences between the two is and where they overlap, giving you the chance to make a smart decision on whether to use them both or choose one over the other. We're all familiar with The Cloud. We know that our "stuff" is now not only online but also on our devices, in the cloud. And we know that most companies are planning to move to the cloud to cut expenses and increase productivity. However, the "cloud" is not a single entity; it is the combination of several components, which include network connectivity, computing power and storage, software, security, and service. If we want to put our data in the cloud, where do we place our data and what resources do we need to put our data there? This session provides a snapshot
